

There are always things that you want to remember and things that you would rather forget. Some things are best left forgotten. Other things should be recorded so that they can serve as a lesson or maybe a reminder that nothing or no one is perfect. People usually remember the things that have had the most effect on their lives. Some people may remember world events of 1972: the winding down of the war in Viet Nam, Nixon's trip to China, the elections of 1972, the conflict over 18-year-olds getting adult rights, as well as local and school events. Other people may only remember overcrowded halls, boring classes, the lack of school spirit, time wasted in the commons—or study hall, and the fun of getting drunk on weekends.

Some people may remember 1972 as a year of questioning the truth of what was given them by the government and the press; both seemed to be presenting only what they wanted the people to believe.

In this, the fourteenth volume of the The Shield, we have tried not to shield the bad, ugly, and real parts of North Scott. We tried to give an honest account of the year, Because that is what yearbooks are for to help you remember. How well this book succeeds in its purpose depends partly on your own memories of North Scott.

I hereby present 1972—honestly.

IS LAW AND ORDER CAUSED BY APATHY BETTER THAN VIOLENCE CAUSED BY INVOLVEMENT?

It was bright and early August 30 that everyone began preparing for the invasion. Promptly at 8:00, the troops began to pour in. At any rate, the alarms rang and . . . another school year had begun.

After Labor Day vacation, studies and activities got in full swing. Football practice had started a week before school opened and everyone was looking forward to using those much publicized new bleachers. The juniors received their class rings and we were told that President Nixon's wage-price freeze would soon affect us—the price of meal tickets would soon go up.

A new page began to appear in the N.S. Press—THE LANCE. The paper later experimented with weekly publication in March.

Watching a homecoming football game in shirtsleeves? The good weather on October 2 was beyond belief. And to top it off, NS 20—DeWitt 0.

One tradition fell by the wayside this year—Homecoming bonfire. Liability and pollution were the main reasons—and the incinerator continued to burn daily. SPACE students did their best for pollution by their treatment of the commons.

"I'm so mad I vill bust!" and "Ah's quittin' Ah is!" are two memorable lines from an equally memorable play, "Peck's Bad Boy" presented November 11 and 12.

It was the climax of hours of hard work too as seven musicians earned the right to represent North Scott in the Iowa All State Convention during Thanksgiving vacation. Football season came to a close and our Big Red machine earned 3rd place in the conference and a 5-3-1 season record.

By December everyone was aware that President Nixon was planning to visit Red China in the spring. And ever since the table tennis team had traveled there earlier in the year, ping pong had gotten a lot of publicity. We at N.S. catch on fast for our first table tennis tournament was under way. Our future diplomats were getting in shape too, as SADONS hosted the NS Speech Invitational.

The Christmas season means many things: shopping, parties, packages, goodwill, and more parties. The Spanish Club held its traditional Mexican Pinata Party and the National Honor Society spread a little goodwill as they bestowed songs and cookies on elderly people in the country. The music department presented a Christmas concert featuring "It's the Lord's Thing", a folk musical, and the student congress contributed to the Christmas spirit by decorating the hall. However, the "Christmas Spirit" got a little carried away at the Christmas aud sponsored by the Student Congress when members of our student body displayed rudeness. Unfortunately this happened several times earlier in the year at auds when the rowdiness could not be blamed on "the Christmas Spirit."

January and February have been described as slow, boring months. As we look back, we know that the first months of 1972 were anything but boring. The Home Economics Department held its first winter style show in the commons and the junior and senior girls worked on preparations for the B.C.

Sapporo, skiing, and snow were on everyone's mind whether they were going on our first ski adventure to Chestnut Mountain, watching the winter Olympics on television, or enjoying a "snow day" off from school. The ski trip was a big success and another outing was scheduled.

By the end of the first semester, the halls seemed a bit emptier as twenty seniors graduated and many students became part time students, coming for a couple of periods and then going home or to a job.

As the wonders of science enabled us to watch such celebrities as Janet Lynn and Anne Henning halfway around the world, we had an even bigger celebrity in our midst. Astronaut Neil Armstrong arrived in the Quad-Cities unnoticed, for a lecture at a nearby college.

The BC was a real success this year as over one hundred bachelors were captured (for one evening at least). King Pete Lagoni was crowned amid wagon wheels and the rustic of "Gypsy Caravan." Sigh..

It was a glass-in-the-door breaking year. People kept running into things. The glass bill at one point was well into hundreds of dollars.

Many records fell by the wayside during the winter, too. The Wrecking Crew II produced a hair raising ½ point at our own Invitational, compiled a 9-2 dual record, and took team championships at sectionals and district. The Freshman basketball team had a 17-0 season and their wrestling team had the best Freshman wrestling record ever. 1975 should be a good year!

Cold weather is a good time for banquets, too. The National Honor Society held its 2nd annual banquet and the juniors served for the Beef Producers Banquet to raise money for Prom.

Misery in the form of sore throats and head colds invaded. However many of these ailments were brought on by the hectic preparations for the 5th annual Swing Show. All were overcome by Friday night, March 10 as "Joy to the World" began at 8 p.m.

The busy schedule of music activities didn't let up much. The Swing Show was invited by WOC to perform on television and a choral aud was presented to the high school. The band presented the second concert of the year and the entire music department began preparations for the State Solo and Ensemble Contest in April.

The metals class finished their mass production and were obliged to sell their products. Nice mice for sale!

Track season began and it was traveling time for a number of organizations, too. Our FBLA attended a competition at Cedar Falls for business skills, a first for them, and our United Nations delegation traveled to the same town for a mock United Nations. The delegation applied for and got war-torn Ireland as their country. Often referred to as "England's Viet Nam." Ireland was in the news frequently during the year.

1972-election year. As presidential hopefuls prepared for their important primaries, candidates for class offices circulated the petitions. Last year nomination and ballot vote was used, but it was decided that using petitions was a better method. This was an administration decision—it didn't seem to make much difference to the students. How much good can come from the 18-year old vote if high school students don't vote in their own election?

It was May already and in a few short weeks it would be the end of another school year. Those last few weeks were very busy—The Drake

JOHN DEWEY

John Dewey, thought by many to be America's most foremost philosopher, was born in Burlington, Vermont in 1859 and died in 1952. He was educated in public schools and graduated from Vermont University. Dewey taught school for two years, then entered John Hopkins University to do graduate work. After receiving his Ph.D., he taught philosophy at Michigan and Minnesota Universities. In 1894 Dewey was invited to the University of Chicago to become head of combined departments of philosophy, psychology, and phenology. At the University of Chicago he established an experimental elementary school known as "The Laboratory School." This school gave him the chance to observe children firsthand in classroom situations. On these observations Dewey developed educational theories that inspired the "progressive education movement." Dewey wrote several works on education, such as THE SCHOOL AND SOCIETY, and THE CHILD AND THE CURRICULUM. In all his works, Dewey argued for greater emphasis upon the needs and interests of the students, and less upon formal subject matter. He insisted that there should be close relationship between school experiences and life outside of school. He maintained that the primary aim of education is to train students to think through problematic situations, not to memorize isolated facts or formulas.

Because he was honest enough to realize that the educational system was not adequate and because he was the first to try to do something to change it, plus his many other qualities, we have decided to dedicate this part of the Shield to John Dewey.

Our Spanish Club at North Scott is one of the most active clubs as they "learn by doing." They planned a full year of lectures, parties, and tours to "formally practice the Spanish language . . . to increase the friendship between their countries and ours," as stated by the Spanish Club purpose.

President Kathy Moore led the club in their many activities, such as their bingo party and family potluck supper. A highlight of the year was the annual Christmas party, Mexican style! Breaking the piñata and cries of "Help, I need water!" after eating the highly spiced food were a part of the party.

Fact: there are an overabundance of teachers in the United States in most fields. With this in mind, the Future Teachers of America at North Scott changed its program a little this year.

Basically the purpose of FTA is to help prospective teachers follow their career in the way that would be to their advantage. Advisor Mr. Quentin Coffman stated, "The club tries to give its members all the information it can on teaching and let them decide for themselves if they want to be teachers."

The club also sponsored many individual projects for its members such as student teaching at elementary schools and helping with remedial reading classes. They also assisted at the Open House on October 23.

JOURNALISM

Horace Greeley, born in 1811, was the most famous journalist in American History. He was interested in the press almost all of his life—when he was fourteen years old, he got a job as an apprentice for the Northern Spectator and later worked for papers in Jamestown, Lodi, in New York, and Erie. When he was twenty he went to New York and worked as a typesetter and job printer for three years. IN 1834 he founded the New Yorker as a weekly literary and news journal. In 1838 he turned to editorializing for the Jeffersonian, which was a Whig campaign weekly. In 1841 he founded the Tribune—the first daily penny paper of Whig opinion. Greeley soon became the owner of a very successful journalism business. He believed in giving an honest presentation of the facts and opinions in his stories, and worked hard to make sure the truth was told. He gives those people in journalism an example to follow in giving an exciting, but honest presentation.

For the first time we tried to express an ideal, not by glorifying our school, but by taking it for what it was. We knew we couldn't have everything as honest as we wanted, but when you spend over 1,000 hours on something the school would find mistakes in, you hate to tell everything the way it really is.

KING ARTHUR

GOVERNMENT

Many people believe that King Arthur actually lived. He may have been a sixth-century Welsh chiefton, or merely a character from early folklore and legend. Whatever the case, King Arthur is perhaps the most famous of early governmentalists and sociologists. His famous Round Table and the "equality" of men and "Might for Right" are examples of man trying to better the world for his fellow man. We chose King Arthur as a symbol and reminder that that is why we study history, government and sociology—the betterment of man. There is a famous company whose slogan is "Progress is our most Important Product." Perhaps man might adopt this slogan for himself and print it clearly on the cover of every History, sociological and governmental text. The Victorian author Alfred Lord Tennyson had his King Arthur say "For what are men better than sheep or goats, that nourish a blind life within the brain, if . . . they lift not hands of prayer both for themselves and those who call them friend?"

ALBERT EINSTEIN

SCIENCE

The name of Albert Einstein is synonymous with the world of science. He was born in 1879 and died in 1955. During these years he became one of the greatest scientists of all time. Einstein's theory of relativity revolutionized scientific thought with new conceptions of time, space, mass, motion and gravitation. His famous equation, $E=mc^2$, became a foundation stone in the development of atomic energy. His theories were used in producing the atomic bomb. His scientific writings are well known to anyone who studies advanced physics. Born in Germany and later deprived of all his property and possessions by the Nazi government, Einstein moved to America where he lived until his death. Most importantly of all of Einstein's traits, that of dedication and determination to investigation of the universe we live in, makes him that scientist that all who seek knowledge might emulate. And so Albert Einstein is in our yearbook: an example.

BETTY CROCKER

HOMEMAKERS

Betty Crocker was born to meet a need recognized by the men of Washburn Crosby Company, a forerunner of General Mills, who believed in sincere, personal home service. In 1921 these forward-looking businessmen developed the idea of a woman food authority to represent the company, helping homemakers the country over. For her signature, they chose the surname "Crocker" in honor of a popular, recently retired director of the company. As Betty Crocker grew in importance and influence, she developed a characteristic philosophy of helpful service. Her style of writing and speaking was warm, friendly, womanly. In 1948, she concluded 24 uninterrupted years of radio broadcasting. Between 1950 and 1960, Betty Crocker was portrayed on television by an actress. But today she appears exclusively in print via her portrait. Her signature, within a familiar spoon shape, is now on an entire line of products, representing the ideal of service in General Mills' convenience foods. The Betty Crocker philosophy, "I'd love to help," continues as an essential ingredient of all Betty Crocker activities. Because of these high standards we have selected Betty Crocker, representative of all the good qualities which are admired in homemakers today. In these days of Womens Lib, a woman who can still make a career out of being a housewife and homemaker is a person who will always be needed in our society.

GEORGE WASHINGTON CARVER

Born of slave parents near Diamond Grove Montana, George Washington Carver won international fame for agriculture research. He developed things from crops such as peanuts, sweet potatoes, and pecans. He also helped the southern farmer by convincing them to grow these crops in place of cotton, as new sources of income. After graduating from Iowa State College in 1894, Carver accepted an appointment there as an asst. botanist. He took over the greenhouse and started the fungus collection that later grew to about 20,000 species and brought him professional fame. Although today's farming is considerably more complex than in the days of George Washington Carver, he stands as a giant example of the fact that the farmer is a scientist among many other trades. We look to the future feeding of mankind with a little apprehension and we will need many more men like George Washington Carver.

The FFA started off the year in their new classroom-shop building. They again sold boxes of oranges and grapefruit before Christmas to raise money for the chapter. Marty Mirfield was president. The boys had animal and crop projects, and, as usual, the freshman had a hard time memorizing the FFA Creed. The boys built, studied, learned, and goofed off-which, honestly, helped them towards their future in agriculture.

ANDREW CARNEGIE

BUSINESS

Though foreign born, in Dunfermline, Scotland, Andrew Carnegie became an American success story as an industrialist and philanthropist. In 1848, his family settled in Allegheny, Pittsburgh. At the age of 12 he earned $1.20 a week as a bobbin boy and later became secretary to the Pennsylvania Railroad's Pittsburgh division. Later he became superintendent and financier and from his earnings bought interest in a sleeping car company. The stock increased greatly in value when the railroads adopted sleeping cars bringing Carnegie a great deal of money. During the war he took charge of the eastern military railroads and telegraph lines for the government and foresaw that iron bridges would become popular. So he founded the Keystone Bridge Works. This business led to the founding of the iron and steel works which brought him a huge fortune. In 1899, Carnegie consolidated many steel works around Pittsburgh and two years later was transferred to the United Steel Corporation and retired. Carnegie believed in distributing his wealth in the public interest. This led to the establishing of the Carnegie public libraries. Most of his fortune went to educational and scientific institutions. Carnegie died at "Shadowbrooke", his summer home in Lenox, Mass., at the age of 83 leaving a third of a billion dollars which was given away to public interest.

FL WRIGHT

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

The American architect Frank Lloyd Wright exemplifies to us all that any man interested in bettering human life and civilization could be. He used the industrial arts as art, not as just something to "make", but to create something. A native of Wisconsin, Mr. Wright began his education in engineering and expanded it to architecture. He was first with metal furniture and his Imperial Hotel in Tokyo, Japan is world famous.

To be honest about it, we feel the arts part of industrial arts is what man can use to make it all worthwhile. Many of the things learned and produced in the rooms and shops of North Scott are art—man creating for man.

Junior Bob Engel shows us what a high school Frank Lloyd Wright can do. This storage shed project was a vivid red and white example of what a lot of honest labor, some thinking and wood can produce.

Directly above Randy Meyer fashions a bowl in the metals shop. Wielding a hammer is Jim Rathmann while Dale Hesse grinds away in pictures to the right. Below Mr. Jack Dudley explains to Ken Wristen the proper use of the micrometer.

"Get your trailer hitch pins from the RAH Co."

"A once-in-a-lifetime buy—73 napkin holders. No home should be without one."

And so the sales pitches went, as the Metals II classes formed companies and tried to sell their products.

The industrial arts teachers noted an increase in class numbers this year. They also started independent studies courses for some. A proposed jr.-high ind. arts program may pave the way to more advanced high school classes. The Northern end of the school may one day be a trade school in its own right.

Igor Stravinsky, a famous leading modern composer, was born on June 17, 1882 in Oranienbaum, near St. Petersburg, Russia. He was brought up in a musical environment, with his father being an opera singer. He began composing without aid of formal instruction and was already in his 20's when he had his first lessons with Rimsky-Korsakov. It was under this influence that Stravinsky became interested in Russian musical folklore. His first important work was for Diaghilev, a famous Russian ballet empresario, for whom he wrote THE FIREBIRD and a ballet PETRUSKA. Before W. W. I, Stravinsky left Russia and stayed in France until 1936, then came to America and became a citizen on December 28, 1945, and gradually abandoned Russian Folklore. Russian motives are still present in HISTORY OF A SOLDIER, written during W. W. I, and LES NOCES. Some of his later works, such as PIANO CONCERTO, and particularly the modern cantata—A SYMPHONY OF PSALMS show a tendency toward classical and religious music. During the same period, Stravinsky wrote scores based on the themes of Pergolesi and Tchaikovsky. The score of his SYMPHONY IN THREE MOVEMENTS is a synthesis of his neoclassical manner and revolutionary style. Stravinsky has had a great influence on contemporary music. Young composers in America, especially, follow the new paths opened by Stravinsky's novel use of classical techniques.

Through weeks of practice, direction, and planning the 4th annual Singphonic Invention came to the North Scott Gym. On March 10 and 11 at 8 o'clock the curtain rose to the combination of the Swing Choir and Band playing "There's No Business Like Show Business". WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

When one mentions literature and the communicative arts the most likely name to come to most minds would be that of William Shakespeare. Every student has memorized the dates 1564-1616. Every student has read ROMEO AND JULIET and JULIUS CAESAR. The numbers of models of The Globe Theatre made by students throughout the world could never be counted. The study of poetry invariably includes a Shakespearean sonnet. And so Shakespeare has become a symbol of literature in its finest form. Somehow Dorothy Parker, Langston Hughes and Ogden Nash just don't ring poetry like Bill Shakespeare. Somehow Reginald Rose, William Inge, Arthur Miller and Neil Simon don't have the footlights of Wm. Shakespeare. And so the mystique and study of the "Bard from Stratford on Avon" will continue. To the delight of some, to the dismay of others, to the confusion of tongues, the Shrew will be Tamed, the Merchant will be Veniced and Cleopatra will Anthony. SPEAK THE SPEECH I PRAY THEE TRIPPINGLY ON THE TONGUE.

ELIZABETH II

ROYALTY

When one thinks of royalty, one honestly thinks of her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain and her family. She exemplifies dignity, wealth, the beautiful ideals of everything a monarchy can stand for. She is tradition. She became queen after her father, King George VI, died. She married the handsome Prince Philip of Greece. A Queenly choice. Her children: Charles, Anne, Andrew and Edward complete the Royal Family. Like traditions in our own country during 1971-2, the Queen, her family and her court, has been under close scrutinization as to its relative position and necessity in the society.

We chose Elizabeth II to stand for tradition of royalty at North Scott because we believe, like Tevee in FIDDLER ON THE ROOF, "Life without tradition is as shakey as a fiddler on the roof!"

October 1st Saw Traditional Royalty Perpetuated by Miss Sunny Frye

Because of the nationwide concern about the pollution and because of some local issues, such as school liability and vandalism, the school board had cause to re-examine the worth of such a tradition. Hopefully we will have a better activity to take its place.

At the pep aud Friday afternoon, the Language Arts Dept. gave a skit entitled "Lancerland."

Friday night's theme could have easily been "Up, Up, and Away" as the week's festivities reached a climax. Flocks of red football balloons, sold for the first time by Pep club, filled the sky after every Lancer TD.

Queen Sunny Frye reigned over the half time ceremonies and the senior band presented their half time show.

A victory well-earned was celebrated Saturday night as everyone danced to the music of the "Wild Cherries" in the commons. A good way to end a great week.

Homecoming 1971 "came in on little cat feet" this year before anyone was really ready. Bright and early Monday morning, Sept. 28, Student Congress members started selling homecoming pins and were met with cries of "Oh my gosh! Is it that time already?" Finally though, everyone got accustomed to the idea of having homecoming two weeks earlier than usual, and the display of class and club sheets in the gym showed that some people HAD begun preparations for the week of festivities ahead of time.

Thursday night, Oct. 1, saw the annual pep rally in the gym and snake dance through the streets of Eldridge. Thursday night also saw the end of a tradition—homecoming bonfire.

All sit and wait, wondering who will the 1972 Bachelor Capture King be, only Homecoming Queen Sunny Frye knows.

When girls start asking guys out everyone knows the time of the Bachelor Capture is near. This year the commons was decorated with floor-length murals of gypsies and trees to bring out the theme "Gypsy Caravan". Something new was added when a secret fortune teller foresaw the future of many couples. As tradition goes the king is crowned on this night and Queen Sunny Frye followed this tradition by crowning Pete Lagoni.

As the Ivory Coast played the theme song "So Far Away" Pete and Sunny lead the dance. As many couples left, some remained to have their fortunes told and remember the night of "Gypsy Caravan".

Sunny Frye places the crown on grinning Pete Lagoni, 1972 King of the Bachelor Capture.

As a tradition the king is asked to dance the theme dance of B.C. with the Homecoming Queen; here is Queen Sunny Frye with the newly crowned king, Pete Lagoni.

AMOS ALONZO STAGG

SPORTS

Trying to find an example of an Honest-to-sports hero we decided that Amos Alonzo Stagg was the most educated, most sincere, most winning, most honest man to be found. As the head of the University of Chicago's physical education department for forty-one years, Mr. Stagg invented the tackling dummy while coaching five undefeated, seven times champion of the Western Conference. His over-all record was 268-141. But more importantly than his inventions and victories, Amos Stagg believed in physical education in any enjoyable form; he pushed for the inclusion of football in every high school and college in the country. It is hard to say who actually founded football, but the fact that it has grown to represent physical stress and strain in an honest attempt at sportsmanship must surely override any of its evils.

Though spirit often lagged, sportsmen prevailed!

Look out North Scott boys, the girls are moving in with sports feats to amaze and delight! Diane Kluever, Sue Whisler, Mitzi Carter, Pam Yocum, Edelgard Rudminat, and Gina Schadt show us the spirit with which the growing intramural program is greeted.

With expanding facilities and interest, under the direction of the physical education instructors North Scott girls participated with other schools and amongst themselves in Track and Field (Aug.-Sept.-May), Archery

(Sept.-Oct.), Basketball (Jan.-Feb.), Swimming (Jan.-Feb.), Volleyball (Dec.-Feb.), Bowling (Nov.-Dec.), Gymnastics (March), and Softball (April). It was a fantastically successful season with giant hopes for the future.

BLEACHERS FILLED FOR FIRST OUTDOOR GRADUATION

170 awarded diplomas May 31, 1972

Rahn Randolph speaks for the Class of 1972.

A chilly evening met the large crowd and graduates outdoors.

The traditional "Pomp and Circumstance" brings a class together for the last time.

Shake with the right and grab with the left, were hints to picking up their diplomas.

When it was announced that North Scott's graduation would be held out of doors for the first time, at least 170 sighs of relief were heard. Past graduations have been notorious for one thing—heat. However, the weather was up to her usual tricks and turned out enough cold weather to make the graduating seniors glad for what heat their robes afforded. Juniors Cheryl Dengler and Bob Auliff escorted the class of 1972 onto the field and Rev. Donald Person gave the invocation. Speakers for the class were Kathy Moore and Rahn Randolph. Students with 3.2 averages or above for the past four years were recognized as honor students. Mr. Fred Jansen handed out diplomas and the class of "72" retired to the high school for presents, hugs, congratulations, tears, parties, and the end of a twelve-year school career.

Kathy Moore spoke for the class of 1972.

Gregg Buese exemplifies a happy graduate.

Students who received awards or scholarships, such as most valuable honors, have in past years been recognized at an award assembly given at the end of the year. However, the aud was not held because a number of teachers expressed a concern for presenting awards in front of a disinterested and unappreciative audience.

The various departments and clubs made the following most valuable awards, Dramatics—Karen Boege and Janie Ewoldt, Speech—Margaret Marsh, Instrumental—Mark Acord, Vocal—Michele Gibson, Home Ec.—Sandra Diercks, Library—Brenda Olsen, Football—Kent Lage, Basketball—Larry Schroeder, Wrestling—Al Dengler, and Track—Bob Oster.

The Betty Crocker Award was awarded to Joyce Grishom. The Scott County Bar Association Award was given to Dale Fischer and Marty Mirfield received a state F.H.A. award.

Kathy Moore received the Daughters of the American Revolution award and an North Scott Education Association scholarship. Barb Kay was also awarded an N.S.E.A. scholarship.

The State of Iowa scholars were: Gregg Buese, Tom Coburn, Linda Hardy, Barb Kay, Kent Kraft, Pete Lagoni, Kathleen Moore and Honda Schroeder. Gregg Buese also received the Bausch and Lomb Science Award.

Tom Coburn and Frank Ehrecke received ROTC scholarships and Stuart Hellman became North Scott's first appointee to the Academy at West Point.

THE MORMON TABERNACLE CHOIR

PEOPLE TOGETHER

Before the H-Bomb, before the atomic age, before Hitler, before the Wall Street crash there was a Mormon Tabernacle Choir. They are a 375 member symbol of international understanding and concern expressed in a concrete way: sacred music.

They show what great sounds a group of people can produce, if they want to. The idea of a student body often relates an image of togetherness. When Brigham Young founded the first choir in the early 1800's he probably had ideas of internal unrest, lack of overall concern and spirit, personal gain vs. group distinction, and the great possibility of never becoming a workable group. To be honest, he succeeded where most groups fail. It makes one wonder why?

Sophomores are in-between people. We are in-between getting started and getting finished to get going. But we are special. We have our own teams. We have Mary Ann Schwartzes and Al Schellenbergs. We have parties we don't talk about. We have honesty and dishonesty. We have Mrs. Chappell and Mrs. Sunderbruch II. We have Mr. Ryan. But best of all we are growing, individually and together. We are going to be tomorrow's winners and leaders. We will leave our mark on North Scott as the class of 1974.

One might think the life of a junior is one of the easiest years but, to be honest about it, it's not. Trying to decide what to do for five periods with only two required subjects and still making sure you're going to graduate. Though some were already planning a senior year, some were working on problems of the current year—prom. Raising enough money to make prom worthwhile for juniors and seniors. Junior girls all looked forward to their first year of decorating the commons, for B.C., while the boys think of being on varsity squads. While prom was prominent in the minds of most, some were making sure all pranks were pulled before moving on. Being a junior means mostly that you will soon be a senior.

Man is challenged today to excel in almost every endeavor . . . those who do succeed often trace the beginnings of their performance pattern to accomplishment in high school and to those who offered stimulation and inspiration in these formative years. Josten's has long been a partner to these educational leaders in providing a means of motivation and the rewards of recognition, and Josten's products have become tangible symbols honoring perseverance and achievement.

The class ring is representative of the fine traditions of school spirit and unity. The yearbook provides a lasting memento of the year's accomplishments. The diploma is a lifelong record of scholastic success. The graduation announcement heralds this achievement. Awards recognize academic and athletic leadership.
